

Constitution of the BISA Intervention and R2P working group

1. The name of the group is the British International Studies Association Intervention and R2P Working Group (BISA IR2PWG) (hereafter "the group").
2. The group is a recognised BISA working group. The British International Studies Association is a registered charity (No. 269284).
3. The aims of the group are
 - To promote the study of Intervention and R2P in world politics, including cases, theory, advocacy, and policy implications.
 - To provide a forum where the implications and interconnections between such issues can be discussed.
 - To facilitate networking and collaboration between scholars and practitioners of similar interests.
4. The current convenors are:
 - Dr Adrian Gallagher, University of Leeds, Email: a.gallagher@leeds.ac.uk
 - Dr Aidan Hehir, University of Westminster, Email: a.hehir@westminster.ac.uk
 - Dr James Pattison, University of Manchester, Email: james.pattison@manchester.ac.uk
5. The convenors will actively seek to include members in the group's decision making process. This will normally be through the groups email list.
6. Online elections of officers and convenors will take place every two years. Members of the BISA NGO WG email list are all eligible to vote. Members will be notified of the method of voting by email. The results of elections will be notified to all members by email.
7. In accordance with the BISA Working Group Guidelines convenors must be current BISA members. PhD students may be convenors, but only as part of a team including academic staff and/or practitioners.
8. Proposed constitutional changes will be notified to members by email. If no email objections are received by the convenors within 28 days proposed changes will be adopted. Where there are objections to proposed changes the group will arrange for a vote on proposed changes to be taken and the result relayed to the membership.
9. Complaints should be addressed to the convenors in the first place. If complaints cannot be resolved by the convenors please contact the BISA executive committee (bisa@aber.ac.uk).
